The Ladies' Favorite Avenue Dry Goods Establishment.

We have reference to the popular and well-known establishment of Messrs. William D. Clark & Co., which is centrally located at No. 811 Market Street, and Pennsylvania Avenue, northeast. Mr. William D. Clark, the senior partner of the firm, is a well-known business man of this city, and his business there, and especially this season, is far in advance of that of any other large department store. The weather was the cause of the large number of customers who are flocking to the store, and the ladies' favorite Avenue Dry Goods Establishment. The goods are of the latest and most desirable styles, and are of the highest quality. The prices are low, and the service is excellent. The store is open from 10 o'clock to 6 o'clock, and is a most desirable place for the ladies to visit. The goods are of the latest and most desirable styles, and are of the highest quality. Weeding Out Saloons.

New York has its exclusive fashionable 400, and the Commissioners have an idea that 400 liquor saloons in Washington are enough. Yesterday they announced that no more liquor licenses will be granted until the saloons in Washington are weeded out to that number. The Commissioners have decided that no more liquor licenses will be granted until June 1, except in a case where a person has bought out a business to which a license has already been granted, and then this will be considered in the light of a transfer only.

Dereit Police Dismissed.

At a board session of the Commissioners yesterday the findings of the Police Trial Board in the cases of Sergeant Duvall, Connelly and Jones and Private Moreland was sustained. The men were tried for failing to report the character of Reed's place on Eleventh Street, and Duvall, Connelly and Moreland recommended for dismissal. The trial board found in this, and ordered that Sergeant Jones be admonished to be more careful in the future.

A Negro Woman Beaten.

Henry Fortune, a brutal negro, distinguished himself last night by beating Nellie Coleman in Freedman's alley. Her wounds were of such a serious nature that Dr. Purcell had to be summoned to attend her, and she was later sent to the Emergency Hospital. Fortune succeeded in making his escape, but he is well known to the police and will no doubt be apprehended.

Stolen at the Circus.

Among the thefts reported yesterday was that of a watch from William J. Coleman of 1635 Tenth Street northwest. Mr. Coleman went to the circus in the afternoon and while taking in the menagerie missed his gold hunting case watch, which he values at $150. No arrest has as yet been made and the chances are that the loser will have to invest in a new time piece.

LOCAL STOCKS.

Transactions on the Washington Exchange—Notes and Gossip.

The transactions yesterday of the local Stock Exchange were of small proportions in the aggregate and unimportant in detail.

For $250 Second Mortgage Light Infantry Bonds 1004, realized. Although within two or three years these bonds have appreciated enormously, having gone up from about 40, bearing as they do 7 per cent. and owing to the great increase in the value of the property over the first loan of $10,000, they may rightly be regarded as a desirable investment. The large interest is supposed to compensate the risk. Sooner or later the two loans may be consolidated and the two mortgages classes exchanged for a first mortgage bond at 4 or 5 per cent. In which case the choice of accepting payment or taking the new bonds would doubtless be given.

For $400 Washington Gas bonds, series B, 123 was received. But for the fact that on all securities running for a fixed time the premium must be eventually lost, this would be a profitable investment. Even admitting the loss of premium this 6 per cent. security will yield for the whole time for which it runs over 4 per cent.

Comment was made in yesterday's Critic on the sale of the Railroad stock, for which the local market was another small lot brought $9, at which price there were larger offerings, but with little disposition, it is believed, to court a bid at the price named. There still appears a disposition to accept $9 for High Insurance. It may be from a necessity of the holder to realize. 100 shares $9 was paid, and the closing offering at the same price, with $1 bid.

This 15th day of May may be considered as marking an era in the telephone stock. One year ago, after one of the most sagacious moves privately of 150 shares of Graphophone stock, for which he paid $4,300, $28 per share. At that time the instrument which the company was offering to the public was, compared to the one now so eagerly sought, as the electric light to the candle-dip of our grandmothers; the output of the machines, slow and uncertain; the factory under lease and extravagant management; the machines sent out, often lacking perfection; the subordinate companies few and insufficient; the enterprise, scarcely out of the experimental stage, and the stock daily tossed from hand to hand by reason of its abundance. To-day the most expert telegraphers in the world, at the United States Capitol, pronounce the instrument all that their extraordinary requirements demand; the work at the factory is adjusted to the nicest system of efficiency and economy; the subordinate companies, numbering thirty-two, with a nominal capital of seventeen millions, acquiring daily greater skill in the important work of distributing the instruments; the enterprise for profitable results scarcely inferior to the Bell telephone, and yet withal, by reason of the simplicity of the public and the cupidity of those best informed of the real worth of the invention, who are actively engaged in bearing the stock, a few shares are daily offered for sale at one-half the price realized a year ago; and such has been the freedom with which wealthy and sagacious people have bought and looked on the stock that it is virtually out of the market except through the offerings, which daily tantalize men, who are seeking the stock in blocks worthy of their attention, well fearing that attempts to get it in dribsles will but force up its value.

The sales yesterday were 105 shares, 50 went to a large holder at 144. The lion's share—55—were bought by the broker who had the order to sell, as he was not out-bid by any other purchaser, and it was not doubted that he held an order to buy as well as to sell and the full market price was paid.
